

ISLAMIC BUILDING IS TOPIC

Dr. Myron Smith, prominent authority on Islamic architecture, last night addressed a public gathering on the Architecture of Islam as a Cultural Expression.

Dr. Smith discussed the evolution of Islamic architecture from the simple open-field mosques to such present-day structures as the Taj Mahal. He mentioned the growing wealth of the people and their desire to use this wealth to build palaces and mosques. He showed how the life and religion of the Moslems affected their mode and tastes in building both their simple houses and their monumental structures.

No Restrictions

Although the Koran itself contains no restrictions on building, the people were wont to continue in their simple way of life and this is reflected in their dwellings. At first, the constructing of monuments over graves was discouraged; later these monuments became more plentiful. Dr. Smith stated that some of the finest monuments are the memorial structures and cited as an example the Taj Mahal.

Dr. Smith spoke of mosques in Persia and India and illustrated his points with coloured slides.

Workshop Speaker Is Duane Desmond

Miss Duane Desmond, of radio station CFCF's record library, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the McGill Radio Workshop tonight in the union club-room at 8 pm.

She will explain the setup and function of the record library in a large station, and will also conduct the announcing class.

Miss Desmond is noted at CFCF where she conducts the Notion Counter three mornings a week at 9:45 am. Previously she was with station CKYL where she did Saturday Night Party with Hal Wardell.

Next week's guest speaker will be Gord Sinclair, it was announced.

Nominees Chosen For Honor Clubs

Thirty-eight male students have been named to run for Scarlet Key positions this year, out of 57 nominated, it was announced yesterday.

Elections for all positions will be held Wednesday, Nov. 30. Still to be named are students for the combined faculties of music and divinity, which have one representative. So far two have been nominated, but the selections have yet to be verified.

There were acclamations in three faculties. Rickie Adrian is sole group A Commerce representative, and Derek Hanson similarly won in Law. Two names were acclaimed in each of group A and B in Medicine.

The following were named to run:

Seventeen girls have been named to run for Red Wing position this year, out of 40 nominated, it was announced yesterday.

Seven girls have been named from each of second and third years, with three to be elected. Three are from physiotherapy, where one will be elected.

Elections will take place Wednesday, Nov. 30. Basis of selection is all around ability on the part of the girls, including extracurricular activities and scholastic standing.

Named from second year were Denise Benzacar, Mary Bright, Ruth Fenton, Joan Fish, Judy Kaulbach, Lexie Osti, and Judy Spofford.

Those from third year are Anne Aiken, Beverly Bartram, Janet Buzzell, Janet Ledain, Sheila Morris, Sherle Perkins and Cynthia Van Law.

Physiotherapy students are Betty Rae Koven, Shannon Stone and Judy Taylor.

SEEK STUDENT RESPONSE FOR CHEKHOV'S SEAGULL

Members of the McGill Department of English are hoping for a high campus response when tickets to Chekhov's The Seagull — which the group will present at the beginning of December — go on sale today.

This production, acted by students and staff under the direction of professor Stephen Porter, will be the first English-language version of the famous Russian play to be given in Montreal. A French translation is currently having a very successful run at Le Theatre du Nouveau Monde, and another English production will be offered this winter in New York.

Use Stanislavski Method

In presenting The Seagull as the first play of the season at McGill, the Department of English will give both actors and audience a chance to experience the famous Stanislavski method of interpreting a drama.

The director Stanislavski, a friend and almost a collaborator of Chekhov's, perfected the modern approach to acting in his production of The Seagull in 1898. His method stresses sincerity. By various devices he made his players believe they actually were the characters they played. The dramas of Chekhov, who supplied a good role for every actor, give the best opportunity to develop this extreme honesty in theatrical art.

Ticket Available Now

Tickets for the play, which will be presented Dec 1, 2 and 3, go on sale today. They will be available from 10 am to 12 noon and 2 to 6 pm every day in the lower lobby of the Arts Building, down the stairs to the left of Moyse Hall; and from 12 noon to 2 pm every day in the Union. All seats are reserved.

A. M. KLEIN IS SPEAKER AT AUTHORS MEETING

A. M. Klein, leading Canadian poet novelist, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Canadian Authors Association to be held in Moyse Hall tonight at 8 pm.

Mr. Klein was born in Montreal and attended McGill University where he was a leading debater and frequent contributor to many campus publications including the Daily. He received his Law degree from the University of Montreal in 1933 and has been a practising lawyer in this city ever since.

Won Several Prizes

For several years a visiting lecturer in poetry at McGill, Mr. Klein is the author of several volumes of poetry. "The Rocking Chair" won for the author the Governor General's Medal for poetry as well as the Bland Memorial Fellowship.

Mr. Klein is the author of the widely acclaimed novel, "The Second Scroll" and has always been a much sought-after contributor to periodicals, journals and magazines. He is recognized as a foremost authority on the work of James Joyce and is presently engaged in completing a commentary on Joyce's Ulysses.

In the opinion of scholars and critics, no anthology of Canadian poetry would be complete without some poems by A. M. Klein.

Will Read Poems

A brilliant personality, Mr. Klein is a witty and provocative speaker. This evening marks Mr. Klein's first public appearance in five years at which time he will read some of his poems and comment upon them.

The Montreal Branch of the Canadian Authors' Association, under whose sponsorship this meeting is being held, is anxious to make the Canadian public conscious of the literary contributions of Canadians. Other events of a similar nature are scheduled for presentation throughout the year.

UN Members Urge Direct Intervention In Armament Race

Direct intervention by the United Nations in the arms race was urged by members of the United Nations Club at a meeting yesterday.

This was proposed as the only method to avoid a damaging major arms race, and would be done by a firmly enforced peace treaty.

Members discussed the topic: Should The UN Condemn The Sale Of Arms To Egypt And Israel By Other Nations? after guest speaker H. A. Mowat failed to appear.

After waiting for Mr. Mowat for some time, he was contacted at the Union, where he had supposed the meeting to be taking place. He then agreed to come right over to the Arts building, but again failed to appear.

The next meeting of the club will be held Friday, Nov. 25, with the Consul General of Israel as guest speaker.

PARKING PROBLEM NEEDS STUDENT AID

Aware of the parking difficulties in the vicinity of the University a specially prepared questionnaire has been drawn up in co-operation with the City of Montreal Traffic Department to attempt to provide increased parking facilities for students.

In order to insure the success of this survey, it is imperative that all students with cars, including those with permits, fill out the following questionnaire and submit it at once in the boxes provided at one of the following places: the Union, the Arts Bldg., the Engineering Bldg., Physical Sciences Bldg.

The co-operation of all eligible students in filling out the questionnaire would be appreciated, so as to speed up new parking facilities.

1. Do you have a car?
.....yes
.....no
2. If so, do you drive your car to the University?

Combined Charities

Young Notes Welfare Ties

McGill University has close ties with many of the 29 Red Feather agencies financed by Welfare Federation of Montreal, was pointed out yesterday by Charles H. Young, executive director of the federation.

Oldest association is with University Settlement, located on St. Urbain Street, which was started to provide a centre for social activities and recreation for students. Today the settlement acts as a community centre for a large segment of the population of that area.

He pointed out that Red Feather is included on the list of charities receiving aid from the McGill Combined Charities Appeal.

Other agencies having ties with McGill, said Mr. Young, include the Montreal Park and Playground Association, which trains students from the School of Physical Education on its playground during the summer months; the Mental Hygiene Institute which is associated with the Allen Memorial Institute; the Rehabilitation Centre on Ottawa Street, which provides field work facilities for mental and social work students, and the Child Health Association, whose clinics are often staffed by McGill faculty members.

The 29 agencies cover four fields of welfare and charitable work. These are: family welfare, child care, health and recreation. A majority of graduates from the McGill School of Social Work take positions with these Red Feather agencies on graduation, he noted.

Editorial

COMING "IN" OR "OUT"

Next Friday night is a gala evening for many Montrealers. This is the night of the renowned St. Andrews Ball and the highlight of the social season for the year's debutantes.

For the uninitiated perhaps it would be wise to outline some background. Each year a group of young women from the very finest homes come "out". You might ask, "Out of what?", or "Out of where?". In brief, the fact is that up until now these young things have been "in". They have been leading a life of girlish seclusion, away from the cruel, heartless world. Now they are to come "out" (as differentiated from "in"). This process is accompanied by a rather giddy whirl of cocktail parties, tea parties, and other assorted parties.

Numerous persons have pointed a derisive finger at the parents of the outcoming daughter. They are pictured as overly wealthy, overly scheming and pretentious and intent only in outdoing the outcomings of others. This we feel is excessively cruel and exaggerated and doubtless spread by the parents of those girls who have been outdone over the season.

At the St. Andrew's Ball, before the eager eyes of proud parents, the debutantes are presented to the Governor-General. This has a ritualistic symbolism about which we are rather confused. The theory apparently is that since it would be rather inconvenient to be presented to our Sovereign, her representative in Canada is the next best thing. It is considered highly necessary to have aristocracy of some sort in attendance so that the young Ladies can perform the deep courtsey that their mothers so painstakingly taught them.

To the plebeian jeers of those that claim to have only contempt for such events as the St. Andrews Ball and all it stands for, we can only maintain that Montreal is being given a glimpse of how life should be lived in all its exciting splendor. It seems such a pity that more of us could not come "out". Then, perhaps, fewer of us would be "in".

MATTER OF PRINCIPAL

A recent SEC meeting brought to light a constitutional phrasing that in effect gave the executive of religious and national campus clubs unlimited powers for deciding membership. It is true that the nature of these clubs of necessity requires that only students of certain interests and inclinations be allowed to join. However, the question debated was whether the executive of any club should be allowed to arbitrarily judge applicants, or whether the constitution of the club should include in it certain rules for membership which would guide the selection committee.

The former situation, which had existed until the SEC ruling, is analogous to a judicial system which contained no written laws, but depended upon a judge with powers to pass sentence according to personal definitions. In such a system there can be no appeal for the innocent.

In the Students' Society the situation of course was not nearly as drastic. Indeed it is doubtful whether the amendment will have any practical significance. However there was a matter of principal involved and its clarification, no matter how incidental, was a necessary undertaking.

Letters to the Editor

Unfair and Snide

Sir:

I would like to express what I know to be the feeling of many R.V.C. girls regarding Miss Lief's article (Daily 21-11-55) about our meals. Factually, it was for the most part accurate. That three hundred women "scream" and that the noise is "nerve-racking", I have not noticed. Perhaps Miss Lief's choice of seven table companions gives rise to this feeling of hers. Freshmen seem quite cheerful about their coffee duty when serving me and those I join for this respite. But above all, I feel that the meals are consistently good. That a menu could be devised to suit everyone every day is so obviously silly and short-sighted that most find the habitual griper childish tiresome.

Both this and your R. V. C. leaves article were poorly transcribed sections of our rules booklet interspersed with unfair and snide remarks. The very publishing of them was to me gross ill taste.

Margaret Deanesly.

Must Read First

Sir:

As one of "the many" myself, I would hardly be inclined to write an article undermining my very secure position.

I am convinced that the young ladies whose letter appeared in The Daily of November 21, have either not read my article, or have not understood it. To clarify: What I intended was simply to point out that there exists a "many" and a "one", and that the individual in either category must be honest with himself in determining just where he stands.

There is no greater compliment to the writer, than an approach, either positive or negative to what he has written. But it is preferably that the readers READ before he makes an attempt to evaluate.

Ruth Roskies.

Abortive Attempt

Sir:

I must say firstly that I sincerely admire your "attempt" to acquaint the student body of McGill with the rules, manners and mores of its women's residence. However, never have I read two such poorly written, uninteresting articles which endeavored to present facts in a newsworthy manner but which diverged sharply from that effort with feeble attempts at humor and satire.

R. V. C. being as it is, the subject of many jokes, comments, serenades, and phone calls can be truly brought to attention in a much better fashion than this. Surely it merits at the very least the attention of a proficient journalist?

We at R. V. C. do not mind in the least laughing at ourselves, our "meals" leaves and many of the other aspects of dormitory living, but it grates a little to be described as "screaming women" and to have such feminine foibles as knitting and gossiping during and after dinner criticised in such an unkind manner.

If you wish to continue your R. V. C. series. I would like to suggest that you attempt to get the "inside dope" as the majority of us see and live it as I am sure that it would be far more entertaining and realistic than that previously printed.

Also on behalf of myself and my fellow "Modern Monsters" may I point out to A. Gordon Peabody that since he left the farm the automatic toaster has been invented.

Colleen Melburn.

KISHINO SETS NEW SWIMMING RECORD

Ace McGill butterfly specialist Lloyd Kishino splashed his way to a new Canadian record at the YMHA tank on Saturday night.

Kishino, a perennial standout on McGill swim teams of the past two seasons was a last minute entry for this meet. In fact Lloyd was undecided till the Saturday of the meet whether or not he would enter the first meet of the season.

In view of the time of the year, and for a first competitive swim in quite a while, his performance is all the more gratifying. Lloyd really lived up to all the things sports-writers have been saying about him the past two years as he flashed the 100 yds. distance in the sensational time of 1:01.4 to set a new Canadian record, eclipsing the old mark by seven tenths of a second.

The McGill flash passed the mid-way distance in an unofficial time of 26.4 seconds, well ahead of the national mark for the 50 yard swim, but so far no application has been made to have the time recognised as a new record for the fifty yard mark.

Kishino's performance was the highlight of a very successful swim meet in which over eighty swimmers participated. Lloyd's sensational form so early in the season is an encouraging note for the Intercollegiate swimming championships coming up soon and a feather in the cap for McGill's new aquatic coach Barry Thompson.

SPORTS SURVEY

A recent survey conducted by The McGill Daily Sports Staff revealed that only one percent of McGill's student body reads the sports page.

It was found that of this one per cent, few read more than one story a day — the rest merely throw the sheet down in disgust.

One of the more interesting sidelights on the survey was the fact that The Daily Sports Staff comprises one per cent of the student population.

WOMEN'S FOOTBALL

The Intramural volleyball tournament continues tonight in the R.V.C. gym at 7:30. Those teams scheduled to play are Arts 3, Commerce, Phys-Ed. 1, and Phys-Ed. 2. There will be a practice after these games for those interested in improving their game.

Aquamen Continue Training Program Regularly At Pool

On your marks, get set, go! This is the most popular combination of words up at the Memorial Pool these days as the swim coach Barry Thompson is gradually putting this year's edition of the McGill swim team through a rigorous training program.

As things are shaping up, it looks as though the team this year will be stronger than last year's edition. Newcomers to the team this year will be Gerry Small, who formerly swam for the YMHA and set some Junior Provincial marks, Ed Lewis, a transfer student from Fordham whose specialty is the backstroke, and Pete Cookson. Cookson showed well in the Intramural meet and could turn out to be a threat in the freestyle and backstroke events.

Holdovers from last year's team include Lloyd Kishino, Pete Capelovitch, Cris Weber, Roger Fairbourne, Norm Benoit and diving champion Jerry Anderson.

Two other returning veterans this season are Robbie Cook, team captain in 1954, and Chris Sperling who is swimming again after a three year absence. All in all coach Thompson has been very pleased with the turnout so far this year and thinks that this team might go on to take the Intercollegiate championship.

FIGLEAF

If someone said to you, "Eisenhower has a long one . . . Dewey has a short one . . . the Pope has one and doesn't use it . . . and every man has one and gives it to his wife" . . . what answer would you come up with?

Your answer depend upon the type of literature which you have spent most of your life reading, for there is an old saying which goes, "reading maketh a full man." "Elsewhere it also states that a limited variety of subjects in reading will give you a narrow outlook in life. Therefore your readings should run the gamut from the serious to the humorous.

What is that you say . . . a humorous magazine is a hard thing to find . . . Its just as easy as uncovering the answer to the above riddle. For if you answered the first then the one below will be easy and your search for literature of the lighter vein will be at an end.

Adam wore it . . . Eve did too . . . it comes on Thursday and people receive sore sides fro it . . . What is it?

Well, as you might have guessed the first is a man's last name, while the latter is the magazine the campus has been waiting for . . . FIGLEAF.

HOCKEY SEASON OPENS THIS SATURDAY NIGHT

This Saturday night will see the opening of the Intercollegiate hockey season as the McGill Redmen travel to Verdun to do battle with the University of Montreal Carabins. Last year the Redmen finished in second spot in the four team league, their highest position in several years. The Carabins were third.

In the four meetings between the two clubs last season, the Redmen came up on the long end of the count three times. The Red and White crew took both games at the Forum by scores of 6-1 and 2-1. At the Auditorium in Verdun, the Redmen triumphed by a 4-2 margin, while the Blue and Gold won by a similar score.

Redmen coach Rocky Robillard does not as yet know just who will dress for the team's first tilt. At present the Redmen roster consists of three goalers, seven defensemen and 13 forwards. To get down to the Intercollegiate limit, Rocky has to cut eight men as only 14 men plus a goaler may dress for a game.

The Redmen will hold a scrimmage on Wednesday with Loyola of The Ottawa St. Lawrence Conference, and the performance of the players in this exhibition will probably determine who's who. Another item of business for the squad will be the election of a team captain for the 1955-56 season. The team will probably pick their skipper after one of the practices late this week, and the result will be published on Friday. Herb English, who graduated last year, was the Redmen captain in 1955.

STUDY OF WRITINGS HELD 'FASCINATING'

The discovery and importance of the Dead Sea scrolls were discussed last night by Dr. R. B. Y. Scott, Professor of Old Testament at Princeton University. The talk took place in Moyses Hall under the auspices of the Canadian Jewish Congress.

Dr. Scott spoke of the great amount of public interest shown in this subject and remarked that "the more you learn of it, the more fascinating it becomes". He said that on many of the issues involved in the scrolls, there is a good deal of disagreement, a problem hindered by the lack of complete evidence.

Many Small Fragments

Among the great mass of material that has been uncovered, there are a great many small fragments, and the problem of fitting them together resembles a jigsaw puzzle. The first finds, made in the Qumrun Caves in 1947, were much more complete than the latest. The scrolls were wrapped in linen and stored in jars, and were thus in a reasonably well-preserved state.

Divinity Students Continue Debate

Two divinity students are prepared to answer any campus questions following a debate and panel discussion last week on the Basic Immorality Of God.

David Forth and Reg Hollis, who opposed the positive views of Donald Kingsbury and Jim Lotz last Thursday, will form a panel to answer questions in a meeting today at 1 pm in Divinity Hall. A chairman will handle proceedings.
